APPENDIX.

KNOX COLLEGE, with its preparatory department, was chartered by the state legislature at the session of 1836-7. The preparatory department was opened in the fall of 1838, with 40 students. Its numbers have been regularly and gradually increasing till the present time. The average attendance, including both departments, has been above 130 for the last year.

Two buildings designed for the accommodation of college students, have been some time in use, though in part occupied at present by the library, philosophical and chemical apparatus, lecture and recitation rooms. The trustees have resolved to erect a large academy building of brick, fifty feet by thirty-six, two stories high. The lumber for this building is engaged, paid for, and is now being drawn upon the ground; and it is hoped that the building may be completed before winter, for the accommodation of the preparatory department. A main college edifice of stone is likewise resolved on, a stone-quarry purchased, and men engaged to excavate the materials for the walls. It is designed to be one hundred feet by fifty-six, three large stories high, and to contain a chapel, library, and other public rooms.

The teaching faculty consists, the current year, as shown by the catalogue, of six men, graduates of colleges, besides the principal of the female branch of the preparatory department, who is a young lady of excellent qualifications, sound judgment, and prudent and discreet conduct. And the trustees are happy in the belief that the high measure of confidence enjoyed by this institution is destined to continue and increase. A full assortment of books and stationery wanted in the institution, will hereafter be kept for sale in the village.

Course of Instruction.

Candidates for admission to the Freshman class will be examined in English Grammar, Adams's Arithmetie, Jacobs's Latin Reader, Six Books of Virgil, Jacobs's Greek Reader, Day's or Lacroix's Algebra through Simple Equations.

In addition to the above studies there will be stated and frequent exercises in composition and declamation in all the classes.

Donnegan's Greek Lexicon, Robinson's New Testament Lexicon, Robinson's Gesenius, and Stuart's New Testament Grammar, are recommended to the student. Eschenberg's Manual and Anthon's Classical Dictionary, will be used as books of reference throughout the course.

Preparatory Department.

Students in this department enjoy the supervision, and, to some extent, the instruction of the college faculty.

The studies are such as are usually attended to in similar institutions, and such as are calculated to prepare the pupils for college, for teaching school, or for the various pursuits of life.

Some of the studies will be attended to constantly—such as Arithmetic, Grammar and Geography; while others will be attended to but once a year, and in the order below named. The year will commence with Natural Philosophy, to be succeeded by Astronomy and Botany, or Chemistry. This will complete the year, one recitation per day, and these studies will be accompanied by lectures and illustrations. The same course will be pursued with the teachers' class, to which instruction with special reference to teaching will be imparted upon Arithmetic, Grammar, and miscellaneous topics. Declamation and the reading of composition alternately, will be required of each male pupil once in two weeks. Females will exhibit composition once in two weeks. Lectures will be given on Natural Philosophy and Chemistry.

Religious Instruction and Discipline.

Devotional exercises, including the reading and exposition of the Scriptures, will be attended to daily; on which, as well as on the worship of God on the Sabbath, all the members of the institution are expected to attend. The discipline is designed to be parental, and conducted on gospel principles. Every student will be expected to abstain from all immoralities, and to exhibit a cheerful promptitude in the discharge of every relative and social duty.

Terms and Vacations.

There are two terms of twenty weeks each in the year. The first commences on the first Wednesday of September, and will be followed by a vacation of two weeks; the second will commence on the first Wednesday of February and terminate on the last Wednesday of June.

Expenses.

Tuition in the collegiate department, per year,	$20 00
" in preparatory department, "	12 to 16 00
Room rent in college building, "	6 00
Contingent expenses, "	2 00

The expenses, having been reduced to the lowest consistent amount, must invariably be paid in advance. No person will be received until he presents the treasurer's receipt; nor will any pupil be allowed to leave the institution without permission until the close of the quarter.

Board can be had in good families at from $1.00 to $1.50 per week, exclusive of washing and room rent. Permanent students are furnished with facilities for reducing very materially their expenses. By manual labor industrious and enterprising students can generally meet the expenses of their board.

This institution is situated on the stage road from Peoria to Burlington, Iowa, in a healthy and delightful country, the population of which is rapidly increasing. The character of the inhabitants, the facilities for communication, the ample and convenient yet economical accommodations, and the success which has attended past efforts, conspire to invite the student, and encourage him in his efforts to prepare for usefulness.
